

What is PrEP?

- Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) when taken daily, by people who are HIV negative, can reduce the risk of getting HIV from sex by over 90%, and reduces the risk by more than 70%, among people who inject drugs.
- PrEP works by preventing HIV from entering and using the immune system to spread throughout your body.
- The risk of getting HIV can be lowered even further by taking PrEP and using condoms.

Who Needs PrEP?

PrEP MAY BE HELPFUL IF:

- You identify as a gay or bisexual male, or a man who has sex with men, AND...
- Have a HIV positive sex partner,
- Have multiple sex partners, or a sex partner with multiple sex partners (including people who may exchange sex for money, drugs or life needs),
- Have anal sex without a condom (both as the receiver and giver), or
- Have recently had a STD/STI (in last 6 months).

You identify as a heterosexual male or female, AND...

- Have a HIV positive sex partner,
- Have a HIV positive sex partner and are considering getting pregnant,
- Have multiple sex partners, or a partner with multiple sex partners (including people who may exchange sex for money, drugs or life needs), or
- Do not always use a condom during sex with people who inject drugs, men who have sex with men or a sex partner with unknown HIV status.

You use injection drugs, AND...

- Share needles or equipment used to inject drugs, also called “works” (in last 6 months),
- Have been in drug treatment (in last 6 months), and
- Identify with any of the additional items listed above.

What is PEP?

- Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (PEP) is used to prevent HIV after possible exposure to the virus.
- PEP must be started within 72 hours of the exposure.
- PEP is effective in preventing HIV, but not 100%.

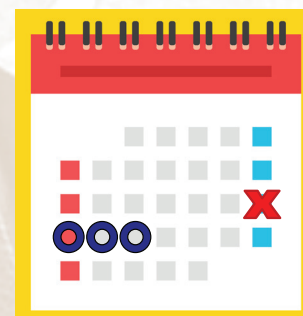

Who Needs PEP?

IF, IN THE LAST 72 HOURS, YOU HAVE:

- Possibly been exposed to HIV during sex (for example - a condom broke during sex with a partner who is living with HIV),
- Shared needles and/or works to prepare drugs, or
- Have been sexually assaulted, then

Talk to a healthcare provider or emergency room care provider about starting PEP.

PEP must be started within 72 hours of possible exposure!

Visit a Healthcare Provider

You must be HIV negative to use PrEP or PEP. If you think PrEP or PEP may be right for you, a healthcare provider can provide more information on the cost, how to use it, and how to avoid activities which may lead to HIV exposure.
