Assessing Multilingual Learners

Motivate Students to Show their Progress

Use a variety of techniques to evaluate academic achievement.

- observation, teacher-student conferences, ticket out the door
- oral reports, role-play, portfolio

Classroom based tests:

- Simplify the language and the instructions and questions.
- Provide choices/ word banks/ short answer responses.

Strategies to Support Multilingual Learners (MLs) in the Classroom

Supporting multilingual learners includes thoughtful preparation before, during, and after instruction. This includes:

1. Lesson Planning
2. Classroom Instruction
3. Assessment

Lesson Planning to Support MLs

- Analyze texts, presentations, and other input for critical vocabulary.
- Access background knowledge of students with images, videos, experiences.
- Prepare academic vocabulary instruction
- Incorporate visual aids and engaging activities that support instruction
- Create graphic organizers to support student content and language learning.

Classroom Instruction

Gradual Release Strategy

- I do: Teacher Models the task or problem
- We do: Teacher and Students engage in the task or problem together.
- You do: Students independently work through a similar task or problem.

Explicit Instruction

- Establish a routine- predictable instruction supports learning.
- Link past learning to new learning.
- Incorporate visual aids, videos, Power points and engagement activities planned.
- Highlight critical academic vocabulary.
- Support students making connections with their 1st language.
- Make content comprehensible.

Lesson Pacing

- Provide extended time for information processing. (MLs need time to process in their first language and transfer it to their second language.)
- Speak slowly and clearly.
- Create clear transitions from one topic to another.
- Use repetition and frequent checks for understanding.
