A healthy baby is a happy baby.

What kind of help is available if I have problems or questions about breastfeeding?

- Lactation Consultants are available to help, so ask your doctor to refer you to one
- WIC staff are available to help, so call the office nearest you
- Ask your doctor about the benefits of breastfeeding
- Peer Counselors may be available at your WIC clinic to provide breastfeeding support

I have to go back to work soon after I have the baby!

A lot of mothers go back to work a couple of weeks after delivering or sooner. Start planning your breastfeeding strategy once you decide to breastfeed:

- Find a babysitter or daycare near your job
- Start talking to relatives, your babysitter and/or daycare about your plans to breastfeed
- Talk to friends, relatives or co-workers who have breastfed to learn all you can before your baby is born
- Talk to your baby's Dad about your plans to breastfeed, so he understands how he can help

Find people who will support you.

When the people around you support your choice to breastfeed, it can make breastfeeding easier.

- WIC- can answer breastfeeding questions and provide you with a breast pump if you are returning to work
- Your Employer- if you plan to breastfeed, you will need a private place to pump or express your breastmilk
- Your Partner- can help with the chores, bring the baby to you for feedings, protect you and the baby from noise and stress, and care for other children
- Your Relatives- can help with chores, cook, babysit once you go back to work, and be understanding of you and the baby's need for quiet time
- Your Babysitter- will need to understand your routine, know when to feed the baby, and be flexible with you so you can come by as needed to breastfeed your baby
