Many people think a sports physical and a well-child checkup are the same thing, but they are different.

Although a well-child checkup includes the exam required for a sports physical, it covers much more. In-depth information like your child’s health history, growth measurements, blood pressure, any required lab tests, as well as development and behavior screenings are all included in a well-child exam.

And, the best part? Both a well-child checkup and a sports physical can be done in just one visit. Don’t forget to bring the required sports medical forms to your child’s appointment.

Call your child’s doctor today to schedule a checkup!

*SoonerCare only pays for well-child checkups. However, as a courtesy, providers may fill out a sports physical form for a member.
