Expanding Health Technology Across Rural Oklahoma

Explore opportunities for Health Information Exchange (HIE), Electronic Health Record (EHR), and Data Analytics assistance through Oklahoma's Rural Health Transformation Program.

Health Information Exchange (HIE) Expansion

This initiative helps cover costs associated with participating in Oklahoma's enhanced statewide HIE/HDU (MyHealth Access Network), making it easier for healthcare teams to securely access and share patient information, including in-depth medical records, imaging, and care gaps.

Assistance includes:

- HIE participation and implementation costs
- Ongoing training, adoption, and support
- Expanded information-sharing capabilities across healthcare settings

Electronic Health Record (EHR) Expansion

This initiative supports rural healthcare facilities that need to adopt or improve EHR technology and connect to the statewide HIE/HDU.

Assistance may include:

- Subsidized EHR software, equipment, and connectivity
- Access to a low-cost EHR platform meeting federal interoperability standards
- Implementation and technical support

Facilities receiving EHR subsidies must connect to and participate in the statewide HIE/HDU. Ongoing costs will be provided and should also be considered.

Data & Analytics Expansion

Turning healthcare data into actionable insights. This initiative strengthens statewide data capabilities to help identify healthcare needs, understand care gaps, and support better health outcomes in rural communities.

Key focus areas include:

- Data dashboards highlighting rural health trends and outcomes
- Improved data quality and reporting capabilities
- Expanded health screening, assessment, and consent tools
- Development of statewide data platform

Who May Qualify?

The program targets rural healthcare providers in Oklahoma communities with populations under 55,000, outside Oklahoma and Tulsa counties, excluding Norman and Lawton. Additional eligibility requirements may apply.
