EVENT SUMMARY

The Idabel Pages Across the Plains Literacy Workshop brought together 63 educators from 8 districts for a meaningful day of professional learning and collaboration. Participants engaged in hands-on sessions designed to support a wide range of learning styles, build foundational knowledge around dyslexia, and reflect on what it truly means to lead in literacy. From classroom teachers to district leaders, teams learned side by side, deepening their understanding of how to create inclusive, evidence-based instruction that meets the needs of all students. The day was filled with practical strategies, powerful conversations, and a shared commitment to continuous growth and literacy excellence.

PARTICIPANT FEEDBACK

“[The presenter] was so prepared and knowledgeable! Walked away with awesome hands-on ideas!!!”

“The activities that she had for us to participate led to some interesting conversations on how they can be differentiated for the different grades.”

“I loved being able to bounce ideas off of each other across districts.”
